

Summer theatre kicks off with SPIN, July 4

Brampton Guardian

BRAMPTON— It will be something a little different launching the 2013 Summer Theatre Season at the Rose Theatre, when SPIN takes the stage July 4.

The one-night-only performance, which is brought in by the season's producers, is a theatrical event billed as "part theatre, part musical gig, part spoken word poetry and part documentary". It introduces performer Evalyn Parry and her captivating show that celebrates the bicycle for all its contributions.

"It's completely unique," said Danny Harvey who shares the role of the season's artistic director with Rob Woodcock. "It's really interesting, really avant garde— it's one of those shows where people will be glad they saw it."

The show is inspired in part by the true tale of Annie Londonderry, who was the first woman to cycle around the world in 1894. The content moves from early stories such as this one, to more contemporary tales from the 21st century.

A reception following this one-night presentation, which takes place on the main stage, will give the audience an opportunity to meet performers from all the summer shows.

Tickets are $35 or $25 with a subscription. It shows on the Rose Theatre's main stage.
